The Dull Point.
It is hard work to plow with a dull point. Can't do as good a job, either. There is a man downtown that is waiting to sell you a new point. That is the way the world's business is kept up. You need the new point; he needs the dollar you pay him for it.—Farm Life.

Good or bad, each year must come to an end.

Good fellows should have good habits, but many of them don't.

This is an age when the office does not seek the man. It doesn't have an opportunity.

Make a fool of yourself, if you must; but don't proclaim yourself an idiot by making excuses.

Don't blow your own horn. People who cannot attract attention in any other way are not worth it.

"A bachelor says that a mule is the most obstinate thing on earth," chirps an exchange. We suspect, however, that some marriageable women think differently.
